

Dan Poynter presents

Young Authors

How They are Writing and Reading

Many older people are sitting like vegetables watching television. Younger people are re-inventing conversation. They stimulate their minds by reading, writing, thinking & interacting online. Young people are embracing New (Social) Media. They are writing for it and reading it. They know that print publications are declining while the future is in online media—and they want to be there. Unbound by convention, tradition and history, they are writing more and reading more than young people in the past.

In this program, you will discover:

- 📖 How Carolyn Woods was awarded a full four-year university scholarship because she wrote and published a book at the age of 16.
- 📖 The secret approach that make writing school papers quick, easy and fun.
- 📖 Where to publish shorter pieces and how to bank them for your book.
- 📖 How some books are written and read on mobile phones.
- 📖 Where to publish your eDocuments and eReports without cost.
- 📖 How to make money from writing.
- 📖 Where to get illustrations, stories and quotations to enhance your writing.
- 📖 Book researching and selling opportunities in forums, blogging, ezines, podcasting and social groupings such as Linked-In, SelfGrowth, MySpace, Bebo, Facebook and Friendster.
- 📖 Why you should spend more time online.

Dan Poynter, author of 126 books, travels the world thrilling audiences with the inside secrets to writing, publishing and promoting books.
